NEWSLETTER VOL. 2

Editor' Note

As we reflect on an exciting year and productive period at South West Gauteng TVET College, We are proud to share some of the highlights and achievements that have shaped our institution throughout the second quarter of the year. We are thrilled to announce a series of innovative occupational programmes that will be implemented throughout the year. These initiatives are designed to equip our students with practical skills and knowledge, ensuring they are well-prepared for the evolving job market.

In this edition of our newsletter, we will feature inspiring stories and highlights from various programmes and events. Join us as we delve into Lerato's remarkable journey in Hospitality and Advocacy, showcasing his growth and the impact he's had in the community. We'll also celebrate the achievements of our students who have triumphed in the ICT Technology Support programme, demonstrating their skills and determination in a rapidly advancing field.

Additionally, the newsletter will shine a light on our partnership with RMI, underscoring the collaborative efforts that enhance our educational offerings. We'll provide insights into the recent Provincial Arts and Culture Festival, which celebrates creativity and cultural expression.

Sabelo Tshabalala

In recognition of the importance of communication technologies, we will commemorate World Telecommunication and Information Society Day, highlighting the pivotal role of technology in our daily lives. We will also share highlights from our First Aid Training and Higher Health Orientation sessions, vital for fostering a safe and healthy community. Finally, we will discuss the significance of the Men's Dialogue, an initiative aimed at promoting discussions around gender and social responsibility.

Stay tuned for these enlightening articles and more as we continue to empower our students and community through education and engagement.

Happy reading!

Lerato's Journey in Hospitality and Advocacy

Lerato Motseothata

In a society that frequently sidelines the challenges of individuals with disabilities, Lerato Motseothata, living with Neurodevelopmental Disorders, emerges as a symbol of hope, resilience, and inspiration. A graduate of South West Gauteng TVET College with a National Certificate Vocational (NCV) Level 4 in Hospitality, Lerato's journey exemplifies the transformative power of determination and the impact of uplifting those around him. Lerato's educational experience has been far from ordinary. Graduating in 2025, he acquired hands on skills through practical training at the college cafeteria and valuable experience at a Mental Disabilities Centre, where he became a crucial support figure for individuals with mental challenges.

Lerato Motseothata with Ms Carien Swart- SWGC Senior Lecturer Hospitality NC(V)

This blend of formal education and real-world experience not only sharpened his hospitality competencies but also deepened his understanding of human interaction and the importance of compassion. What truly distinguishes Lerato is his unwavering commitment to his peers and the broader community. Serving as the Deputy Chairperson for Academic Affairs and Operations on the Student Representative Council from 2024 to 2025, he championed the rights and needs of students, particularly those within the disability unit. Under the mentorship of esteemed educators Mr. Justice Ratapa and Ms. Nathalia Kong, Lerato developed innovative support strategies that fostered a more inclusive educational environment, ensuring that the voices of all students were heard and valued.

After completing his studies in 2025, Lerato's career took a significant leap forward when he secured a learnership at the South African Business School. Currently, he works at Poswa Incorporated Law Firm within the Litigation Directorate, where he plays an active role in assisting his superiors in resolving disputes in a court of law. In this dynamic professional setting, Lerato navigates the complexities of legal processes, making him an integral part of a team dedicated to upholding justice. His time at the law firm has been transformative, allowing him to sharpen his administrative and organizational skills while mastering the distinctions of managing documentation essential for effective legal proceedings.

Lerato's ability to handle customer inquiries with professionalism has earned him respect and admiration from both colleagues and clients alike, showcasing his dedication to excellence and high standards of service in the legal field. Lerato Motseothata's journey is not just about his accomplishments; it is about his commitment to making a difference. Through his advocacy and professional endeavors, he continues to inspire others to break down barriers and strive for inclusivity. As a role model, he demonstrates that the challenges of disability do not define one's potential but rather showcase a unique path filled with resilience and triumph. Lerato's story is a powerful reminder of the difference one individual can make in the world. By embracing adaptability, problem-solving, and an unwavering commitment to uplift those around him, he paves the way for others to follow. In a community that thrives on diversity and inclusion, Lerato stands as a beacon of hope, proving that with determination and compassion, we can all contribute to a better tomorrow.

18 Students Triumph in ICT Technical Support NQF Level 4 Programme

RMI together with SWGC award 18 students with laptops

In a significant celebration of educational achievement and technological advancement, 18 of the 20 dedicated students in the ICT Technical Support NQF Level 4 programme were honoured for completing the course. This initiative, funded by the National Skills Fund and guided by South West Gauteng TVET College, aims to equip learners with essential skills in the ever-evolving field of information and communication technology. The event was held at the college's George Tabor Campus, receiving enthusiastic support from various offices, including the Principal's Office, represented by the Assistant Director of Curriculum Implementation; Ministerial Programmes, Mr. Ratshilumela; and the New Business Development Unit, represented by the Unit Manager for Occupational Programmes and Projects, Mr. A. Sebe. In addition, the WBE/WIL Coordinator, Mr. D. Letsoalo, was in attendance.

The students demonstrated remarkable determination, hard work, and commitment to their academic pursuits within a programme designed to enhance their technical skills, improve their employability, and prepare them for future challenges in the tech industry. During the ceremony, each of the 18 students was awarded a brand-new laptop. This generous gesture is not only a reward for their hard work but also a critical resource that will enhance their learning as they delve deeper into the world of tech support. With the challenges posed by the current job market, having access to technological tools and resources is invaluable for their ongoing studies and professional development. The programme itself has been instrumental in bridging skills gaps and fostering career readiness among youth. Participants engaged in hands-on training sessions, learning about troubleshooting, network management, and software installation—skills that are critical in the ICT sector.

The curriculum was designed to blend theoretical knowledge with practical applications, ensuring that students left the programme not only with certificates but also with the confidence to apply their skills in real-world settings. Expressing gratitude, one of the top-performing students remarked, “This programme has opened many doors for me. The knowledge I’ve gained and the tools I've been given will help me further my studies and pursue a career in technology.” His sentiments were echoed by many of his peers, all of whom expressed excitement about continuing their educational journeys.

Mr Aubrey Sebe - New Business Development Unit Manager addressing the receipients of the laptops.

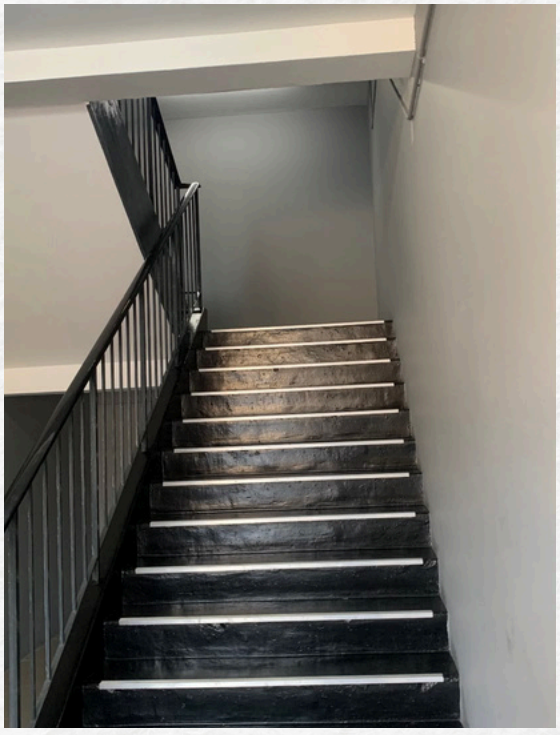

The support from the National Skills Fund underscores the importance of equipping young South Africans with the skills necessary to thrive in a technology-driven world. By investing in education and technology, organizations like the NSF and South West Gauteng TVET College are playing a vital role in shaping a skilled workforce that can meet the demands of the future. As these 18 students embark on the next chapter of their academic and professional journeys, they serve as an inspiration to others. Their success story illustrates the positive impact of vocational training and the importance of community and institutional support in fostering talent and empowering youth. The successful completion of the ICT Technical Support NQF Level 4 programme is a testament to the students’ perseverance and the effective collaboration between the National Skills Fund and South West Gauteng TVET College. With new laptops in hand and knowledge at their fingertips, these young learners are now well-equipped to navigate the opportunities that lie ahead in the dynamic world of technology.

Building a Brighter Future - South West Gauteng TVET Scholars at Work

Dedicated students who contributed to constructing modern sanitation facilities for local traders and patrons.

This week, we celebrate the remarkable achievements of a group of dedicated students from South West Gauteng TVET College who have transformed their technical training into real-world impact. Through their innovative work, they've not only enhanced local infrastructure but also uplifted their community, showcasing the true essence of vocational education. The Architects of Progress In an impressive demonstration of skill and creativity, students from various disciplines have come together to address urgent infrastructural needs in the community. Their determination and collaborative spirit have resulted in a series of projects that benefit thousands of traders and patrons. Masonry: Establishing the Cornerstone Leading the charge in this initiative is an inspiring masonry team comprising of Ndzamela, Kamogelo Mokwana, Evidence Mabitla, Teboho Molelekeng, and Dukuza Madiba. These students have taken on the formidable task of conceptualizing and constructing modern sanitation facilities from the ground up. With their meticulous bricklaying and attention to structural integrity, they have delivered accessible and dignified amenities vital for the market ecosystem.

Plumbing: Orchestrating Essential Infrastructure Njabulo Gumede, a plumbing specialist in the cohort, has played a crucial role in this transformation. By executing comprehensive plumbing installations that integrate drainage, reticulation, and water supply networks, Gumede has ensured that the infrastructure meets regulatory standards. His work promises longevity and operational efficacy, essential for sustaining community needs. Carpentry: Articulating Form and Function The finishing touches that bring spaces to life are equally critical. The carpentry team, inclusive of Buyisiwe Nkabinde, Kamohelo Ngwenyeni, Sithembelenkosini Ngobese, Harry Mnisi, Sphesihle Jama, Sphesihle Mnyamane, and Katleho Floyd Sello, has expertly transformed empty spaces into functional environments. Their craftsmanship shines through modified office furnishings and the complete fit-out of a new kitchen, featuring well-designed cabinetry and ergonomic workstations. Beyond Construction: A Manifestation of Vocational Excellence This initiative highlights that vocational training is integral, not ancillary, to community development.

By providing scholars with the opportunity to apply their skills in real-world settings, South West Gauteng TVET College demonstrates how training can lead to self-efficacy, sustainable livelihoods, and resilient communities. A Collective Impact The contributions from the SWGC Joburg Market Cohort—in masonry, plumbing, and carpentry have significantly enhanced the local market environment. Each member of this team has left an indelible mark on their community, and their combined efforts have fortified the Joburg Market for years to come. As we wrap up this Feature Friday, let us acknowledge the incredible work of these students. Their dedication and hard work exemplify what it means to be on the pathway to professional excellence.

Celebrating Artistic Excellence at the Provincial Arts and Culture Festival

By Sabelo Tshabalala & Tshepo Mokoena

Students Participating in a Dance Challenge during the Provincial Arts and culture

The recent Provincial Arts and Culture Festival was a vibrant showcase of creativity and talent, drawing participants from colleges across the province. Among the contenders, South West Gauteng TVET College (SWGC) stood out with remarkable performances that highlighted the dedication and skill of its students. The festival was not for the faint-hearted, as it brought together some of the best emerging artists, dancers, and musicians. Despite the intense competition, SWGC students rose to the challenge, proudly representing the college and demonstrating their artistic abilities.

Their achievements over the two-day event were nothing short of commendable. The first day of the festival kicked off with impressive displays in the performing arts. SWGC showcased their versatility and cultural richness through various performances: - Traditional Dance/Song: The SWGC team danced their way to a well-deserved 3rd place, captivating the audience with their rhythm and storytelling. - Hip Hop Dance: With an electrifying routine that blended modern moves and traditional elements, they secured another 3rd place. - Gumboots: Stepping into the spotlight, the gumboots ensemble earned a thrilling 4th place, showcasing their energy and creativity. In the visual arts category, talent shone brightly as a male student excelled in charcoal drawing, winning 3rd place, with a piece that left a lasting impression on the judges.

The second day turned the spotlight onto the choral and vocal performances, where SWGC continued to impress with their melodious talents: - Baritone Performance: Our baritone vocalist claimed a remarkable 3rd place, showcasing a captivating blend of power and nuance. - Chamber Choir: The chamber ensemble also earned a 3rd place, harmonizing beautifully and enchanting the audience with their vocal prowess. While bronze medals may not shine as brightly as gold or silver, they signify an important milestone—an acknowledgment of hard work and artistic expression in a highly competitive arena. The SWGC students' achievements are a testament to their commitment, courage, and preparation, as they took the stage with pride and confidence.

These accomplishments not only reflect personal growth but also underscore the importance of community and collaboration within the arts. They illustrate the potential of students to embrace opportunities and rise to the occasion, even amidst fierce competition. The commendable results achieved by SWGC at the festival serve as a rallying cry for students across the campuses. It is vital to embrace every opportunity to participate in student activities, as each experience contributes to personal development and the college's overall strength. As more students engage in artistic endeavors, the college will only become more competitive and vibrant in future programmes and festivals.

The key ingredients for success lie in exposure, support, and a continuous commitment to refining one's talents. The recent achievements of SWGC at the Provincial Arts and Culture Festival are worth celebrating. Still, they also remind us of the untapped potential waiting to be explored within the college community. So, let's encourage one another to step forward, participate, and showcase the incredible talent that resides at SWGC!

Electrifying Innovations: Celebrating the 2026 World Telecommunication and Information Society Day at South West Gauteng TVET College

Guest Speaker Sean Sharp - ABT Divisional Franchise Director

On May 15, 2026, the South West Gauteng TVET College became the vibrant epicentre of the World Telecommunication and Information Society Day (WTISD) celebration. This annual event, which commemorated the signing of the Constitution of the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) in 1865, brought together experts, students, technologists, and enthusiasts to explore the transformative power of telecommunications and information technologies in society. This year's theme, "Connecting for a Sustainable Future," proved to be particularly electrifying, resonating with the global quest for innovative solutions to pressing societal challenges.

A Stage for Innovators

At the heart of this grand celebration was the George Tabor Campus of the South West Gauteng TVET College, renowned for its commitment to vocational excellence and technological advancement. With a rich history of fostering talent and innovation, the campus was ideally positioned to host a myriad of activities aimed at celebrating and promoting the significance of telecommunications and digital literacy in modern society.

Engaging Activities for Everyone

The day's events included a series of engaging workshops, interactive exhibitions, and insightful panel discussions featuring industry leaders and experts. Students had the opportunity to participate in hands-on demonstrations showcasing cutting-edge technology, including the latest advancements in mobile communications, artificial intelligence, and the Internet of Things (IoT). In addition, the college organized competitions that challenged students' creativity and critical thinking by encouraging them to develop innovative solutions to local and global issues through technology.

These competitions not only fostered teamwork and problem-solving skills but also inspired the next generation of tech pioneers.

Keynote Speakers and Thought Leaders
The WTISD celebrations featured keynote speeches from influential figures in the telecommunications industry and academia. These thought leaders shared their insights on the future of technology, the digital divide, and the role of young innovators in shaping a sustainable world. Their experiences and knowledge empowered attendees, sparking discussions that could lead to groundbreaking ideas and collaborations.

Networking Opportunities
Students, professionals, and industry representatives had ample opportunities to network, exchange ideas, and explore potential collaborations. This was essential not only for personal growth but also for building a supportive community that thrived on shared knowledge and innovation.

Importance of Digital Literacy
At its core, this celebration emphasized the significant role of digital literacy in achieving economic development and social inclusion. With millions still lacking access to information and communication technologies, it became more crucial than ever to empower individuals with the skills needed to navigate the digital landscape. The events at South West Gauteng TVET College contributed to raising awareness about the importance of bridging the digital divide, ensuring that everyone benefited from the advancements in telecommunication and information systems.

A Bright Future Ahead
As the world became increasingly interconnected, the 2026 World Telecommunication and Information Society Day at South West Gauteng TVET College celebrated the pioneering spirit of innovation and collaboration that defines the future of telecommunications. This electrifying event not only highlighted the incredible advancements in technology but also inspired attendees to embrace the challenges ahead, making meaningful contributions toward a more connected, informed, and sustainable world. Participants joined in on this transformative journey and became part of a future where technology uplifted society. The South West Gauteng TVET College George Tabor Campus eagerly welcomed everyone on that remarkable day!

Empowering Future Leaders Through First Aid Training and Higher Health Orientation

By Sabelo Tshabalala & Tshepo Mokoena

SRC members participating in the First Aid training and Higher Health Orientation

On the bright days of May 2nd and 3rd, 2026, a dynamic group of Student Representative Council (SRC) members gathered at the vibrant Dimonate Restaurant, located on the Roodepoort Campus. Little did they know that these two days would not only enhance their skills but also empower them to become effective leaders and advocates for student well-being. The programme kicked off with an engaging First Aid Training session, where our student leaders were introduced to vital first aid techniques and emergency response strategies. They learned to navigate through critical situations with composure and confidence, each skill serving as a lifeline for their fellow students in times of crisis.

This training went beyond just the basics; it was a deep dive into leadership development and student wellness awareness, where participants were encouraged to embrace their roles as peer supporters. As the sun rose on May 3rd, Higher Health Officials took the reins to conduct a comprehensive Orientation, Registration, and Induction for new Peer Educators. This segment of the programme was pivotal in reinforcing the support systems available within the institution. The atmosphere was filled with enthusiasm and determination, as the newly inducted Peer Educators recognized the significance of their roles in fostering a healthier campus environment.

The overarching goal of this initiative was clear: to equip SRC members with a toolbox of skills and knowledge that would enable them to serve their peers better. By investing in their training, the institution is not only enhancing individual capabilities but also strengthening the collective responsibility towards student welfare and campus development. This First Aid Training and Higher Health Orientation programme was more than just a workshop; it was a transformative experience that ignited passion and commitment among SRC members. As they left the venue, they carried with them not just first aid skills but also a renewed sense of purpose to contribute positively to student life and well-being on campus. The future looks bright with such dedicated individuals at the helm!

Strong Enough to Talk: Redefining Men's Health at the South West Gauteng TVET College

South West Gauteng TVET College staff members at the Men's Health Dialogue

On May 7, 2026, the South West Gauteng TVET College's Health and Wellness Directorate hosted a groundbreaking Men's Dialogue, themed "Strong Enough to Talk: Redefining Men's Health." This event, held at the George Tabor Campus, brought together men from various backgrounds to engage in open discussions about critical health issues affecting them today. The dialogue aimed to challenge the stigma surrounding men's health and encourage open communication. This theme resonated deeply, urging attendees to confront societal norms that often silence men about their health struggles. As participants gathered, a palpable sense of solidarity filled the room, highlighting the importance of community in tackling health issues.

Among our esteemed guest speakers was Dr. Ngobe, the Head of the Department of Mental Health at Bheki Mlangeni District Hospital in Jabulani. In his engaging presentation, he delved into the various types of mental health illnesses, illuminating the complexities and nuances of each condition. Dr. Ngobe also highlighted the common triggers that can lead to these mental health challenges, as well as the significant obstacles faced by individuals and healthcare providers in addressing these issues. His insights provided a deeper understanding of the mental health landscape and the urgent need for awareness and support. Many men often suffer in silence, feeling the weight of expectations to be stoic. Discussions centered on the importance of emotional expression and accessing mental health resources. Personal stories shared by some attendees brought the topic to life, showing how vulnerability can lead to strength.

Dr. Mofokeng, a specialist from Bheki Mlangeni District Hospital, conducted a comprehensive presentation addressing several critical health issues, notably prostate cancer, HIV/TB, and the utilization of pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) as a preventive measure. During the presentation, Dr. Mofokeng elucidated the nature of prostate cancer, outlining its development and progression within the human body. He also underscored the importance of comprehending the mechanisms underlying HIV transmission and the strategies individuals can employ to effectively mitigate their risk of infection through the use of PrEP, a medication specifically designed to prevent HIV in populations at high risk. The primary objective of the presentation was to enhance awareness and provide essential insights into these pressing health concerns. Given that prostate cancer ranks as a significant health issue among men, experts disseminated crucial information regarding symptoms, prevention strategies, and the imperative of regular health check-ups. Personal testimonials from prostate cancer survivors contributed a poignant dimension, encouraging others to prioritize their health proactively.

Staff members participating in the Men's Dialogue

Among the distinguished guest speakers was Mr. Zitshima, a resilient survivor of both Gender-Based Violence (GBV) and Prostate Cancer. He captivated the audience as he shared his profound journey, detailing the challenges he faced while navigating the trauma of GBV and the physical and emotional battles of his cancer diagnosis. His story served not only as a testament to his strength but also as a powerful reminder of the importance of support, awareness, and healing in overcoming such significant life hurdles.

Sergeant Mashile from the Moroka Police Department addressed some common misconceptions surrounding the reporting of gender-based violence (GBV), particularly highlighting the challenges faced by men in these situations. He emphasized that men, like women, possess the same rights to report incidents and seek justice when confronted with such grievous circumstances. Regardless of the nature of the incident, he reassured individuals that they have the right to pursue their grievances up the chain of command, all the way to the station commander or even to the Independent Police Investigative Directorate (IPID) if necessary.

Staff Members at the Men's Dialogue

Additionally, Sergeant Mashile shed light on the pervasive issue of substance abuse, which presents a significant obstacle in their line of duty. He pointed out that many individuals who find themselves in trouble with the law, particularly men, often do so under the influence of alcohol or drugs. The impairment caused by substance use can cloud judgment and lead to poor decision-making, resulting in actions that culminate in arrest. By addressing these critical issues, he aims to foster a better understanding and encourage everyone to take responsibility for their actions, regardless of their gender. Acknowledging that GBV is not solely a women's issue, the dialogue encouraged men to speak out against violence in all its forms. Creating safe spaces for men to share their experiences is crucial in redefining masculinity and forging healthier relationships. Lastly, financial well-being was explored by Mr Mphahlele as a vital component of overall health. Experts discussed budgeting, saving, and accessing financial assistance, equipping attendees with tools to improve their financial literacy.

The "Strong Enough to Talk" dialogue served as more than just an event; it was a movement aimed at dismantling the stigma surrounding men's health. By sharing stories and fostering open communication, participants left equipped with knowledge and support networks to prioritize their health and wellness. If you or someone you know is facing challenges related to any of the topics discussed, remember that reaching out for help is a sign of strength, not weakness. Explore local resources, support groups, or healthcare providers dedicated to men's health. Remember, being strong is also about having the courage to talk.

The Men's Dialogue at South West Gauteng TVET College was a powerful reminder that it's time to rethink how we discuss men's health. Only through open conversations and shared experiences can we combat the myths and stigmas that prevent men from seeking the help they need. Together, we can redefine what it means to be strong. In closing, let's continue this vital conversation beyond the event. Share your thoughts, experiences, and questions, and keep the dialogue going. It's time to embrace a healthier, more understanding future for men everywhere.
